<td>RADICALIZED RELIGIOUS FUNDAMENTALISM - IDENTIFICATION WITH AN IDEAL OBJECT AND DESTRUCTIVENESS</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Radicalisation of fundamentalistic thinking can be found in several cultures and religions. The dark and destructive side of this phenomenon challenges psychoanalysis to explain how religious certainty, as a narcissistic fantasy of an identification with an ideal object/ideal state, leads to violent acts and states of mind that intermingle and mutually reinforce one another on the psychological plane. These significant relations will be discussed.</td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Many of the Islamic suicide bombers went through a process of self-radicalization in late adolescence leading to an identification with radical political ideologies. It is a destructive solution of a deep crisis in late adolescent development. We will describe these processes and provide some case examples.</td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Psychoanalytic conceptualizations have pronounced the role of unconscious fantasies for the radicalization of fundamentalistic thinking. Therefore early parenting and the development of good object relations is relevant in preventing the development of fundamentalist thinking.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>In this presentation two large empirical prevention studies for ‘children at risk’ in the Kindergarten (the so-called EVA project) and during the first three years of life (First Steps) will be discussed. ABOUT THE SPEAKERS

PROF DR MARIANNE LEUZINGER-BOHLEBER

Is a training analyst in the German Psychoanalytical Association (DPV) and a member of the Swiss Psychoanalytical Society. She is a Professor of Psychoanalysis at the University of Kassel and Director of the Sigmund Freud Institute, Frankfurt/Main. Marianne has published widely in her main research fields, amongst them methods of clinical and empirical research in psychoanalysis, educational science and modern German literature.

DR WERNER BOHLEBER

Is a former President of the DPV and is a training analyst and editor of the German psychoanalytical Journal Psyche. In 2007 he received the prestigious Mary S. Sigourney Award which recognizes distinguished contributions to psychoanalysis. He has published widely and is the author of several books. His main area of interest is trauma, both in the individual and wider social sense: terrorism, xenophobia, racism and anti-Semitism, right-wing extremism, and the trans-generational consequences of the Nazi period in Germany.
